Opioid-related deaths on the rise

Cheryl Browne, Barrie Examiner

There's a new drug about to hit the streets that might keep drug-users alive.

At the same time as a Provincial report was released, showing alarming statistics of opioid drug deaths, the Simcoe Muskoka District Health Unit announced that it will give out naloxone - a heroin/opiate brain inhibitor - in an effort to help keep people alive, after they have overdosed on narcotics.

"Currently, only trained medical staff use it, but we're going to distribute it to opioid users in a harm-reduction program called a POD, or Prevent Opioid Death kit," said Jillian Fenik, clinical service manager of health services at the SMDHU.

Health officials say it isn't just a GTA problem. Between 2000 and 2009, there were 109 opioid-related deaths in the Simcoe Muskoka region, the majority among males between the ages of 20 and 44. In 2012 alone, there were 31 overdose deaths involving opioids.

"It certainly is going up," said Fenik. "In Simcoe Muskoka, we have a 29% greater opioid death experience, relative to the rest of Ontario."

In 2012, OxyContin began to be replaced by Oxycodone - an opioid that is harder to crush and inhale. As a result, some of those addicted to the heavy-duty painkillers have been purchasing Fentanyl on the streets - an opiate said to be 100 times stronger than morphine, that has been linked to overdoses.

On July 7, the Institute for Clinical Evaluative Sciences (ICES), working in collaboration with the Ontario Drug Policy Research Network, released a report titled, "Opioid-Related Mortality Leads to Considerable Burden in Ontario." The report found that 31 in 8 deaths in Ontario among young adults (ages 20-34) was related to opioid use.

The report found that opioid-related mortality increased by 242% during the study period, from January 1, 1991 to December 31, 2010. A total of 5,935 deaths were reported - 64.4% among males, 90% in urban areas.

Ron Simpson, Town Councillor, former Bradford Lions, and member of the PROBUS Club passed away on Sunday, July 6, at his home, after a battle with cancer. Simpson was first elected to Council in 1985, in the Twp. of West Gwillimbury. He served on the Amalgamated Council, then was re-elected as Councillor for Ward 5 - a position that he held until his untimely death at the age of 69. He served on the Police Services Board, chaired the Nottawasaga Valley Conservation Authority, and several Town committees including Facilities. It was under his chairmanship that the Town built the new Leisure Centre and Public Library/Cultural Centre.

Another look at a Heritage Conservation District

Back in 2007, the Town of Bradford West Gwillimbury retained a Heritage Architect to assess the built heritage of Bond Head and Newton Robinson. His conclusions: Both hamlets retained a core of historic buildings, dating mostly from the 19th Century or early 20th Century, that would merit preservation in a Heritage Conservation District.

An evaluation of Bradford found several individual buildings worthy of designation - but not the same kind of "critical mass" of heritage buildings, that was found in Bond Head. A Heritage Conservation District, or HCD, provides blanket protection to all of the built structures deemed of interest, within a geographic area - rather than designating one building at a time.

An HCD for Bond Head was contemplated during 2013 budget talks - but Council decided to hold an Information Session instead, under the auspices of the BWG Heritage Committee, to gauge interest in pursuing HCD designation for downtown Bond Head before setting aside any money.

The session took place this June 25 at the Bond Head Hall. About 25 residents - including members of Council - attended, to hear Director of Development & Planning Geoff McKnight provide an explanation and an overview of Heritage Conservation Districts.

McKnight was introduced by Chair of the Heritage Committee, Craig Cunningham. "An HCD has been a topic of discussion around the area for the past few years," Cunningham said. "We're not here to convince you that they're good or bad" - just provide information, he said.

McKnight noted that an HCD was designed to "protect and preserve an area that has special attributes." It's a process, that follows certain steps: A request to designate an HCD can be put forward by any group or interested individual, to be followed by consultation with the Heritage Committee; identification of a study area, and the hiring of a Conservation Architect to evaluate the heritage value and attributes; delineation and mapping of the Heritage Conservation District; and public consultation.

Only then will the guidelines be set for the preservation of heritage buildings, and a Designating By-law prepared. Council could then pass the By-law and adopt the HCD Plan, notifying Ontario Heritage Trust - and changing the Zoning By-laws and Official Plan to recognize the restrictions within the HCD.

The final step: implementation. HCD Controls would apply to the exterior of heritage buildings, McKnight said - but not to internal renovations, and not to maintenance and re-painting, "provided you use the same colour." Homeowners within the HCD would have to apply for a Heritage Permit, outlining the changes proposed, before applying for a Building Permit.

However, at this point there has been no move forward, "no formal initiation of an HCD process," McKnight said.

Who sets the controls on what is permitted and what is not, one resident asked, suggesting that if the controls are "as tight as paint colour, there will be push back."

McKnight explained that it is community consultation that determines how strict, or loose, the restrictions will be. Asked about incentives, he noted that the Heritage Act permits the Town to provide homeowner grants or tax rebates for heritage conservation. "There's a set of incentive tools available - a proper preservation package," he Council approves.

"Where are we in the whole thing? We talked about this 5 years ago," another resident wanted to know.

"We're at zero," said McKnight. There has been no action taken since the last time the issue came up. At present, most buildings in Bond Head aren't even listed on a Heritage Registry - which means that they are vulnerable to demolition.

Local historian David Chambers made a case for declaring an HCD in Bond Head. "We have a complete 19th Century hamlet... (with) 2 pre-Confederation hotels, and of course, the Osler church." Currently, he noted, only 3 of the buildings are listed on the Heritage Registry; a developer could apply for a demolition permit for the rest, and the Town would be constrained to issue a permit in 7 to 10 days.

"Would that it would be so easy to preserve a building, as to demolish it," Chambers said, urging the Town "to be good stewards of our heritage."

He submitted "ten pages of signatures" expressing concern about the preservation of downtown Bond Head, an "important and unique history that should be promoted, protected... I think there's some interest here."

The Town of Innisfil has just completed a Heritage Conservation District designation for the village of Cookstown. Consultants MMM Group mapped out a large area of the village for the HCD, but within the boundaries classifies as A, B, C, or D. Those categorized as "A" were buildings of greatest historical or heritage interest, that faced the strongest controls; "D" referred to buildings that had no heritage significance, and were exempt - interior changes, and modifications not visible from the street.

Residents opposed to the designation have appealed to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Tayah's Birthday wishes to Heaven

Tayah Fairbrother contemplates her wish, at her last birthday. The community is being invited to celebrate what would have been her 6th Birthday on Sunday.

It would have been Tayah Fairbrother's 6th birthday, on Sunday, July 13.

The brave little girl lost her long battle with cancer in December of last year - but her parents are determined to celebrate her life, and give back to other families living through the incredible challenge that is Cancer. They will be holding Tayah's Birthday Wishes to Heaven fundraiser this Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Canadian Tire Store parking lot on Holland St. West - raising funds to help two other children battling cancer, kids that Tayah met while undergoing treatment at Sick Kids hospital.

Savannah Herbert is only 4, and has been diagnosed with Stage 4 neuroblastoma - the same disease that took Tayah's life. Savannah's mom is a single mother of 3 children, struggling financially as her little girl fights a relapse.

Meera Porter, also 4, has Alveolar rhabdomyosarcoma - a rare and aggressive cancer of the face. Little Meera is in remission, but the family - which has 2 other young children - is struggling to meet its bills.

As Candice Fairbrother explains, "Our 5-year old daughter Tayah Fairbrother passed away recently from a long battle with cancer... She was a beautiful, brave and inspirational little girl who touched the hearts of many people - especially many from Bradford, as this is our home town.

"The community of Bradford was so incredible in helping Tayah and our family during such a tough time in our lives, and for that we are forever grateful. Sunday, July 13 would have been Tayah's 6th birthday, and we would like to do something special to honour our little angel. And what better way to honour Tayah than by helping other children with cancer?" The community is invited to the Canadian Tire Store parking lot this Sunday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. for a giant BBQ, face-painting, maniques for the girls, visits from princesses and superheroes, cake, raffles, prizes, a visit by the Firefighters, and a balloon release at 1:30 p.m. The community is invited to come by and write their wishes on helium-filled balloons which will be released together, taking those wishes to Heaven.

There will also be a Giant Community Yard Sale - with everything available by donation, to help raise funds for the families. Donations of yard sale items can be dropped off at the CTR parking lot between 7:30 and 10:30 a.m. on July 13, or contact Candice at 1982@live.ca to arrange another drop off time.

There is more information at "Together for Tayah" on Facebook. Candice is delighted by the support she has received from the community, and the donations to date. "The more money we can give (to the families), the better," she says, noting that Tayah always used to think of others, despite her ordeal.

"She'd always pray for these other kids, every night," she remembers - although some nights, Tayah was too tired to pray for herself.

Candice Fairbrother has one more request. She's asking people to tie the purple ribbons to a tree or shrub, on July 13, in honour of Tayah's birthday. "Tayah's favourite colour was purple."

Theft of Boat and Trailer in Innisfil

Sometime between June 27 and July 4, an 18' white aluminium Princecraft motor boat, with 60 HP Mercury outboard 4-stroke motor, on a white boat trailer, was stolen from the owner's driveway in Alcona, Innisfil.

Anyone with information is asked to contact South Simcoe Police at 705-436-2141 or 905-775-3311, or to remain anonymous, call Crime Stoppers, at 1-800-222-TIPS.

Paving the Barrie St. Parking Lot, in time

The Town of Bradford West Gwillimbury has awarded the tender for the construction of the parking lot at 31 Barrie St. - the former site of the Engineering building - to Wyndale Paving Co. Ltd.

Only 3 tender bids were received for the job, which will include paving both the lot and Alban Lane - and of those, only two were complete. Wyndale was low bidder, but its bid of $227,052.35 (excluding HST) was about $50,000 over budget.

In the June 17 meeting of Council, Deputy Mayor Rob Keffer asked if the work would be completed before Carrofest. "We don't want it half-done. If there's going to be a delay would it be an advantage to us to tender?"

Manager of Capital Projects Kurram Tunio explained that the contract specifies the job will be completed within a certain number of working days - and before Bradford's annual street festival. "I'm pleased we're investing in the downtown," said Councillor Gary Lamb, warning that enforcement of parking limitations would be needed to ensure that the new lot doesn't become a "personal parking lot" for residents, and a place to "dump" their cars all day. "That defeats the purpose."

Mayor Doug Whittle noted that the Downtown Revitalization Committee has had "no appetite" for paid parking, at this time - and agreed enforcement will be key.

Fail to comply

At around 2:20 p.m. on July 2, a South Simcoe Police constable observed a vehicle near 10 SR and Innisfil Beach Rd., with an expired validation sticker. When the driver spotted the police cruiser, he began to drive erratically, attempting to avoid capture - finally turning into a driveway and running for the house.

He was arrested by the officer before he got inside. Investigation revealed that the driver, a 23 year old Innisfil male, was on several Driver's Licence suspensions, and forbidden from being in the front seat of a car by Judge's Order, stemming from previous criminal charge. The driver is facing charges of Fail to Comply with Conditions, and numerous Highway Traffic Act offences, including Careless Driving, and Drive under Suspension.

The vehicle was impounded for 7 days; the driver has a court date in August.

Looking at the Election

To the editor: The provincial election we just faced was thrilling, it offered a stark choice between an activist government and an austerity government. For me, being home in York-Simcoe to work on Loreale Carruthers' campaign, made it particularly meaningful - especially welcoming Premier Kathleen Wynne (my old boss) to Bradford.

Since this time last year, local Liberals built an extraordinary team, essentially from nothing: nominated an experienced, articulate local candidate in Trustee Loreale Carruthers; furnished tens of thousands of dollars from grassroots donors; and, during the campaign, rallied over 100 volunteers to campaign across this huge riding.

On election night, while we came up short, it was the best Liberal result in York-Simcoe in my lifetime - and we won Bradford. I want to congratulate our long-time MPP, Julia Munro, on her victory. Mrs. Munro is such a lovely individual. Certainly, from the Liberal and Conservative perspective, our local campaign was the most respectful I've ever encountered.

I also want to make quite clear that our riding matters to Premier Wynne's government. She has visited Bradford some 5 times in the past year or so. And over a dozen cabinet ministers came through our riding, for meetings, events and government announcements in the past year. Our Liberal government will support York-Simcoe by investing in all-day GO train service, making commuting easier; by supporting farmers; and by continuing to invest in local healthcare and our schools.

The work of the Provincial Liberal Association continues. Anyone interested in getting involved can visit <http://yorksimcoe.ridingassociation.org>

Growth, Preservation NOT mutually exclusive

To the editor: The Deluca family has a long and proud 55 year history in Bradford, and are committed to seeing our Town thrive. Three generations of Delucas have witnessed the profound changes this Town has undergone. Through Delmark Homes, our proudly owned Bradford-based family business, we're helping to contribute to the Town's ongoing growth and vitality. Contrary to what others have been opining, Delmark Homes is not simply about maximizing profit above all else. We take pride in the craftsmanship of the homes we build and are responding to the needs of our rapidly growing community.

Change is never easy. So while people talk openly about development, many get cold feet once that development begins to take shape. And that's precisely what's happening now.

Make no mistake. Delmark Homes believes in the preservation of Heritage buildings, and there are many properties in Bradford worth preserving. Had 108 Moore St. been listed as one of them, we would certainly have moved on. But it wasn't listed. Only when it came to light that our family owns Delmark Homes did the Heritage Committee decide that we had to be stopped.

We understand that the Heritage Committee needs to do its due diligence and protect buildings worth saving, but the citizens of Bradford would be better served by a committee that is organized and diligent rather than one that's prone to ad hoc decision-making. This mess need not have happened.

Water walk around the Lakes

At the turn of a tap, water gushes out a system of delivery so far removed from the streams, rivers and lakes that it is easy to forget the connection, and the responsibility, to preserve clean water for future generations.

The Mother Earth Water Walk, "Waawaase'agaming," was all about restoring that connection, and remembering that responsibility.

In 2003, Grandmother Josephine Mandamin of Three Fires Lodge of the Midewinwin Society, Anishinaabe Nation, first began walking for the water - carrying a copper kettle filled with water, accompanied by an Eagle staff, and saying prayers along the way. The kettle of water represents life; the Eagle staff, the connection to the Creator - a reminder that without water, there is no life.

Mandamin, a member of the Fish Clan, explained that women have a responsibility to preserve the water, because women are caregivers, and give birth. "We are all water. We are born of water. We are all water people. We are all water carriers - we carry water within us," she said. "We have a duty to care for the water."

Since 2003, she has walked over 17,000 km - and was the inspiration for Becky Big Canoe to organize the Waawaase'agaming Water Walk this year, walking around Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching. Waawaase'agaming is the original name of Lake Simcoe.

"We wish to raise awareness of the vulnerability of the lakes to the increasing pressures put on them," said Becky - pollution, stormwater runoff, invasive species, waste dumped by boaters and ice anglers, hazardous materials spills.

A core group of walkers, including her sister Deanna, Tammy Charles, Denise Charbonneau and other Anishinaabe women and men started walking on June 23, on Georgina Island. Walking in relays of 2, they completed the circuit around Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching July 2, finishing up in Virginia Beach.

"It's a great thing that my sister started," said Deanna - remembering as a child, Lake Simcoe was so clear and clean that she could drink directly out of the lake. Now, even this early in the season, the beach on Georgina Island is closed due to bacteria.

The walkers needed to walk at least 25 km, per day, to meet their goals. In spite of sore feet, hot sun, and pouring rain.

The walkers reached Innisfil on June 25, and were welcomed to the home of Ken and Andrea Simpson, where they were greeted by local residents, including Barbara Love and Marj Mossman - who have been working to have

Lake Simcoe declared a Heritage Lake. "All of us have to take responsibility, to look after it for future generations," protesting what's here, said Mossman. "It's our lake."

The Water Walkers hoped that there would be dialogue, as they passed through communities around the lakes - a greater realization of how precious water is, and how important it is to preserve clean water for future generations. "My grandmother always told me to respect water," said Josephine, encouraging people to become more mindful of how they use a precious resource.

The Walk was not only spiritual, but practical; Becky Big Canoe was also raising money to better equip and train local fire departments to respond to hazardous spills and other threats to the lakes. 1st Anniversary, 4 the Halibut

Tania Da Silva is celebrating a milestone. Her 4 the Halibut Family Diner on County Rd. 27 just north of Bond Head is celebrating its 1st anniversary - one full year of serving up hand-made burgers, fresh cut fries, all-day breakfasts, Greek salads, famous onion rings, and signature Fish and Chips, featuring Alaskan White Halibut. Recently, the restaurant had a "birthday" surprise: it was chosen as the scene for filming a new Nissan commercial.

For 3 days, Da Silva and her staff welcomed about 100 people per day to the "set," serving a buffet breakfast of bacon and eggs.

"It was a fantastic experience," she says. "We fed them well, and they were happy... They let me sit in the Director's Chair!"

4 the Halibut now also offers live entertainment, every third Friday - a singer who comes in with his banjo and ukele, to entertain. "We have a lot of fun. It adds a little bit of ambience."

And she wants to thank everyone who has made the first year of the Restaurant a success.

"Thank you to the community for its support - and my team, because you can't do it alone!"

4 the Halibut Family Diner: 3231 County Rd. 27, call 905-775-4685 or check Facebook.

The Golf Lab has a new home, in Bond Head

It's a partnership made in golfing heaven: The Golf Lab, ClubLink and The Club at Bond Head, and Alta Nissan Group have come together to create The Golf Lab at Bond Head Jr. Performance Centre.

The Golf Lab is a private company that, as the name suggests, focuses on the science of golf, as well as the passion. A team of experts, including founder, Golf Lesson Specialist and Technical Coach Liam Mucklow, coach Cam Carly and Medical Director Dr. Nick Martichenko, provides golf instruction and development for all ages, from their facility in Vaughan.

The Golf Lab's Junior Development program focuses on kids, ages 6 through 18 - and now, thanks to the new partnership, will be housed in the Golf Pavilion at The Club at Bond Head during the summer months, taking advantage of the superb course and facilities and utilizing the technology available, including K-Vest analysis, BodITrak and TPI functional movement screens to help the young golfers develop their game.

Right now, The Golf Lab has 8 juniors enrolled in the full-year University Prospects program, for ages 15 to 18. "All of these kids are competitive golfers. Golf is their primary sport," says Carly.

The players on the Jr. Prospects Team come from Lindsay, Orangeville, Barrie and Woodbridge communities, at the 8th Annual Mayor's Golf Challenge held at The Club at Bond Head, on July 3. The annual event is not only an opportunity to play the ClubLink course, which straddles the boundary between BWG and New Tecumseth, but to raise money for charity.

This year, one of the recipients of Physical and Equipment" aspects of development.

So far, Carly says, "We've had some really good performances," as the teens play the tournament circuit, entering between 6 and 16 tournaments over the season - and right now, he notes, "It looks like 50% of the team will qualify" for CJGA competition.

The short-term goal is to double the numbers enrolled in the Jr. Performance Centre. The long-term goal is ultimately to create a self-sustaining 3-tier system, starting with the "Future Stars" Junior Program for the youngest players, ages 6-10, and providing a continuous spectrum of training and development, through Player Development (for ages 11-14), to the University Prospects program.

The goal is to take kids "from where they can just play the game, to thinking about it as a competitive sport. Building that," Carly says. He calls the program and the partnerships "really neat." A really good sponsor (Alta Nissan Group), access to some of the best courses in Canada through ClubLink and the opportunity for kids to play the game "at the highest level."

Mayor's Golf Challenge at Bond Head

Bradford West Gwillimbury Mayor Doug White played host to another fruitful tournament, at the 8th Annual Mayor's Golf Challenge held at The Club at Bond Head, on July 3. The annual event is not only an opportunity to play the ClubLink course, which straddles the boundary between BWG and New Tecumseth, but to raise money for charity.

The funds will be for Joey Mazzucco's Fedora Foundation - a Foundation established by 12-year-old Cancer survivor Joey Mazzucco, to provide iPads for children battling cancer. Joey found that the electronic device helped keep him connected, positive and entertained during his lengthy stay in hospital, and after chemotherapy - and he was

~ Ally Condie,

Teachers pay the price of success

The new Chris Hadfield Public School set a modest target for Jump Rope for Heart.

With 406 students, the school hoped to raised $2,500 for the Heart & Stroke Foundation through the fundraising event.

In fact, the school raised $4,344.

Perhaps it was the "incentives" that made all the difference. Students were told that if they raised $500, they could "Silly String" teachers Mrs. Vallins and Mrs. Abercrombie.

If they raised $1,000, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Jones would sing and dance, to the Chipmunk's Party song.

If they raised $1,500, they could dump a bucket of water on the heads of Ms. Emo and Mrs. Ferreira; $2,000, and Mr. Sauve would dress up in a tutu and dance a ballet.

And if they hit the target, Vice Principal Mrs. Senick and Principal Evelyn Alban would participate in a "mystery event" - which turned out to be a make-up and hair "make-over" by two of the top fundraising students.

The fun took place on June 20, as teaching staff "paid up" for a successful Jump Rope for Heart.

Students plant for the future

The South Simcoe Streams Network hosted another Community Work Party Day in the Bradford West Gwillimbury area on June 25.

In addition to Ministry of Natural Resources students and volunteers from the Lake Simcoe Region Conservation Authority, the workers were mostly students from Sir William Osler Public School.

They had been scheduled to plant native trees and shrubs on the new berm beside the reconstructed Holland Marsh Canal earlier in the year, but bad weather led to a cancellation.

On Wednesday, the weather held up, and the kids came out to plant - and what better way to end the school year, than with an environmental project, said teacher Lisa Smith.

The kids planted 50 small Red

Oak saplings, provided through a partnership with Somerville Nurseries, and backfilled the large stock white pine, white spruce and sugar maples that had been planted earlier in the week, on top of the berm.

Co-ordinator Silvia Pedrazzi showed the students how to do the "tree-planting dance", to make sure the soil was properly compacted around the rootball, and how to mulch, preparing the newly planted trees for the summer to come.
